

Liz Kane

Liz Kane is currently a Senior Associate at The Milken Institute's Center for Public Health. The Center for Public Health at the Milken Institute is dedicated to finding solutions to complex public health challenges as an integral part of the Institute's mission to improve lives and build human capital.

Prior to joining The Milken Institute, Liz began her career at Sanofi in their North American Government Relations department. Most recently, Liz worked on the Government Reimbursement team focusing on activity by the Center for Medicaid and Medicare (CMS) and state Medicaid agencies that could affect Sanofi business.

Liz holds a Bachelor's degree from the McDonough School of Business at Georgetown University.

