

Molly Louthan is a Workforce Strategist at Upwork, the world's largest freelance marketplace. She works with Fortune 1000 US companies to build out on-demand talent programs that allow organizations to scale with speed and hire hard to find talent. Her background in consulting, staffing, recruiting, and executives coaching give her the insight needed into working with executives to examine how they get work done.

She launched Chicago's Advancing Women Executives and is a tireless promoter for the advancement of women and men professionally and personally. Molly has worked as the leading resource for corporate executives from companies like Allstate, Bank of America, Grainger, TransUnion, Schneider Electric, HSBC, Northern Trust, Accenture, and Cars.com.

She is also heavily involved with IC Stars, a non-profit that helps to train inner city youth in technology and helps them find jobs. She is on the Board of Ambassadors for the YWCA, which shares her mission of empowering women and eliminating racism. She attended Miami University where she received a BA in Marketing.

She has a passion for helping people identify what their next career move should be and how to achieve it. Molly empowers people to be fearless and ask for what they want out of life!
