She is passionate about designing and building solutions for business owners and leaders who desire to perpetually provide i) foundational economic growth in their community, ii) a force of productive employees with a "we can" mentality, and iii) diversified growth. Carol is fiercely motivated by helping women and minorities gain financial independence by optimizing strategies, deal making, and education. "I want to show people who work hard, care about leadership, and give back to their community how to benefit from those things during their lifetime and the good they can do when that comes to an end."
