

Duncan has worked in a range of country operational and strategic commercial roles in multiple disease areas and geographies. He has 29 years of experience in the industry, starting his career in the UK with GlaxoSmithKline where he worked for 9 years and then moving to Novartis for 13 years where he worked in the UK, Switzerland and the United States.

Duncan joined Vertex 6 years ago and until November 2018, led our Global Commercial Strategy Team. In this role he collaborated with Research, Development and Regulatory across all our disease areas to prioritize assets in Research and align Clinical Development and Health Economics plans to ensure successful data generation and global launches.

In November 2018, Duncan moved to lead the Vertex North American Commercial Operations team which includes all Sales, Marketing, Specialty Pharmacy and Payer interactions in the US and Canada. In this role, Duncan also collaborates closely with other key functions such as Health Economics, Medical Affairs and Government Affairs in both the US and Canada.