

Zubin Eapen, MD, MHS

Chief Medical Officer

Dr. Zubin Eapen is CareMore's system-wide chief medical officer (CMO) and leads the organization's care delivery, clinical strategy, and clinical innovation. As CMO, Dr. Eapen will drive the continued evolution of the CareMore model to serve complex, high-cost, and high-need patients.

Prior to coming to CareMore, Dr. Eapen served as Associate Professor of Medicine of the Division of Cardiology and Medical Director of the Same-Day Access Heart Failure Clinic at Duke University where he led efforts to reduce admissions and readmissions among high-risk heart failure patients. He also served as the Department of Medicine's Director of Clinical Improvement. Dr. Eapen received his undergraduate degree as a Morehead Scholar at the University of North Carolina; his medical degree (MD) from the Duke University School of Medicine; and underwent his internal medicine and cardiology training at Duke University Medical Center.

Dr. Eapen is a member of the American Heart Journal editorial board and was the electronic media editor for the Journal of the American College of Cardiology: Heart Failure. He is the author of numerous medical publications and the editor of the 14th edition of Hurst's The Heart.