

Kim Fox

Kim Fox a senior healthcare communications executive with a proven track record leading global and US initiatives at media, pharmaceutical, and public relations companies.

Kim's creativity, high energy and strategic insights bring value to her collaboration with executive leaders, colleagues and external partners to deliver business results through a patient- and consumer-centered approach. Kim consistently activates innovative, research-based and impactful communications solutions that cut through the clutter to reach targeted influencers and audiences. A strategic and innovative thinker with excellent leadership skills, Kim excels at mentoring, talent development and team collaboration.

Kim is Communications Leader, Johnson & Johnson, Office of the Chief Medical Officer and serves on the Healthcare Businesswomen's Association global board of directors. She is married with two children residing in Summit, New Jersey, where she is an active volunteer in support of local education and sports activities.