

Leslie is a seasoned Communications professional with extensive experience in the pharma and healthcare industry. With five years at Sandoz, almost eight years at AstraZeneca, and 16 years at J. Walter Thompson servicing the healthcare industry, Leslie delivered strategic communications for US and global healthcare businesses to address a wide range of complex corporate challenges. In her current role as VP Communications of Sandoz, Leslie has delivered integrated communications strategies in support of its biosimilar portfolio, branded and generic medicines. Additionally, she creates internal communications programs that drive employee engagement through understanding of company purpose and priorities, performance, culture and engagement. Leslie is a member of the Sandoz Executive Committee (SEC), and leads the Women in Leadership and Diversity & Inclusion Committees. She received her Bachelors in Business and Minor in Journalism from Calvin College and her MBA from Villanova University.