

GISELE SHELLEY

Gisele Shelley has been involved in organizational and leadership development for 25+ years in a wide variety of industries, both domestically and abroad.

Her areas of focus are on executive, team and group coaching; breakthrough leadership programs for women; meeting facilitation; and speaking on a variety of topics that are known to immediately inspire new ways of thinking with tangible practices that can be immediately applied.

Her clients consider her insightful, straightforward and “lovingly provocative”, helping them to shift perspective, get new points of view and make significant changes. This allows them to solve problems and drive business results while being authentic, powerful leaders. They accomplish these results by having breakthroughs in their mindset followed by Gisele’s simple and practical tools and practices they can immediately implement in their professional and personal lives. They save time and increase confidence while decreasing people pleasing, guilt, worry and perfection.

Her extensive work with executive teams enables them to produce extraordinary results. She is known to be a skillful facilitator for any type of session that needs to get results, empower people, and build cohesion.

A sample list of her client industries include: Financial Services, Aerospace, Search, Pharmaceuticals, Consumer Products, Consumer Foods, Airlines, Luxury Goods and more.

Prior to founding The Glenbrook Group, Inc. in 2001, Gisele worked with Merrill Lynch, Charter Oak Consulting Group, The American Quality Foundation, and The Hay Group.

Gisele holds a Masters Degree in Organization and Leadership from Columbia University, has Bachelors Degrees in History and French from Vassar College, is a certified coach from The Newfield Network and is in process of gaining her ICF Master Coach Certification.

Gisele is the Program Director for the Conference Board's Coaching and Leadership Development Council and previously CEO Council and is the founder / Chair of the Annual Coaching for Business Results Conference. She is based in Nyack, New York where she lives with her husband, two teenagers and two dogs.
