

Tammy works with financial professionals across the country offering compelling education and relevant sales strategies on the retirement income topics that impact virtually every American: Social Security, Medicare and healthcare. Through one-on-one training consultation and group coaching, she motivates and inspires financial professionals to understand the client acquisition, retention and sales growth opportunities around these topics. Tammy has delivered hundreds of presentations for financial professionals, their clients and other audiences. Her authentic passion and magnetic personality give her the ability to educate, entertain and motivate an audience to action.